Noah Henry

by Deana Sobel
Lederman

All content (c) 2020 Deana Sobel Lederman

www.deanasobel.com
@drawdeanadraw

Today, I woke up and got dressed for school, but school was closed.

I packed my backpack with my teddy and a snack for the playground, but Mommy said we couldn't go.

I drew a picture of a fire truck
for my friend Piper, but Daddy said
I had to save it for her.

So I found my binoculars and my hat to take to the Zoo, but the Zoo was closed too!

Mommy said we had to wash our hands.
Daddy said we had to wash our hands.
We talked to my teacher on the phone, and she said we had to wash our hands.

I went to wash my hands. I made my little brother wash his hands too.

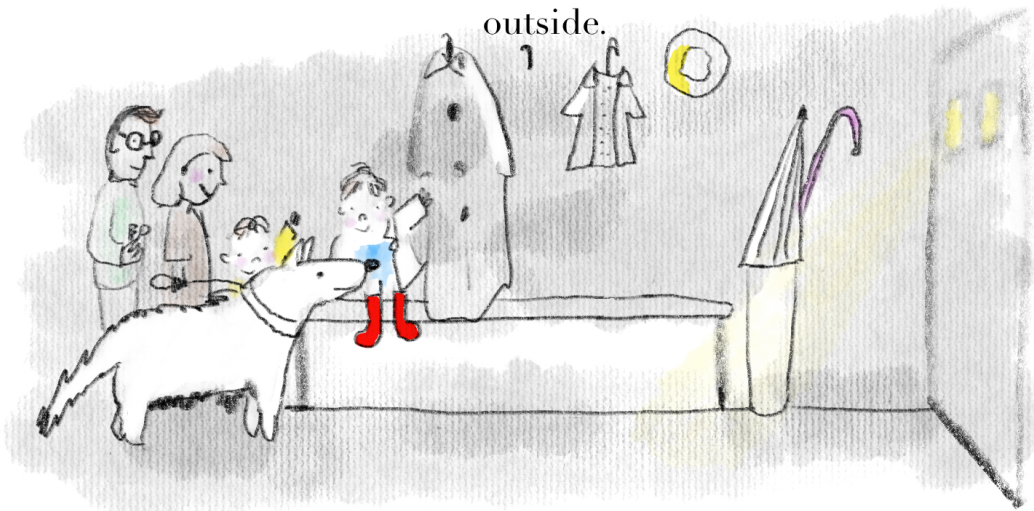

Mommy gave me a hug.

“Soon, we’ll be able to play with our friends, Noah Henry” she said, “and soon you’ll be able to go back to school. Soon, we’ll be able to go to the Zoo.”

Then I had an idea. “Can we take Poppy for a walk?” This time, Mommy said yes. We all got dressed to go outside.

The streets were mostly empty, except ...

In the window of Piper's house, we saw a rainbow.

In the window of Reza's house,
we saw a rainbow too!

And in Aliza's window and in Eli's window!

It was a concert of people.

It was a parade of rainbows!

When we got home, I drew a rainbow.

That night,
I fell asleep thinking of all the rainbows and all the windows and all the people I loved.

Noah Henry (A Rainbow Story)

All content (c) 2020
Deana Sobel Lederman
www.deanasobel.com